The ECTS System

What is ECTS ?

ECTS, the European Community Course Credit Transfer System, was developed by the Commission of the European Communities in order to provide common procedures to guarantee academic recognition of studies abroad. It provides a way of measuring and comparing learning achievements, and transferring them from one institution to another.

The ECTS system is based on the principle of mutual trust and confidence between the participating higher education institutions. The few rules of ECTS, concerning Information (on courses available), Agreement (between the home and host institutions) and the Use of Credit Points (to indicate student workload) are set out to reinforce this mutual trust and confidence. Each ECTS department will describe the courses it offers not only in terms of content but also adding credits to each course.

ECTS Benefits

- create an openness at the course level by giving detailed information on the lessons and their relative importance towards the completion of a degree;
- allow access to regular classes just like for students of the host country, as well as an active participation in the university life of the institution;
- Preserve the autonomy and responsibility of the higher education institutions for all decisions relevant to the students' results, without modifying the existing teaching structures nor the evaluation methods: the ECTS students attend the same classes and are subject to the same evaluations as the students regularly attending the host institution.

ECTS credits

- ECTS credits are a value allocated to course units to describe the student workload required to complete them. They reflect the quantity of work each course requires in relation to the total quantity of work required to complete a full year of academic study at the institution, that is, lectures, practical work, seminars, private work in the library or at home and examinations or other assessment activities.
- In ECTS, 60 credits represent the workload of a year of study; normally 27,5 up to 30 credits are given for a semester.
- Practical work placements and optional courses which form an integral part of the course of study also receive academic credit. Credits are awarded only when the course has been completed and all required examinations have been successfully passed.
